Dignitaries break ground for new school in Morinville

by Grant Cree

A new school in Morinville was heralded on Feb. 19 during a sod turning ceremony in the Edmonton Garrison. St. Kateri Tekakwitha Academy, located near the newly opened McDonald’s Restaurant on 100 Street, is scheduled to open in September 2020.

Officials with Greater St. Albert Catholic Schools gathered with local dignitaries, project partners, and community members to participate. The ceremony began with 48 students from École Notre Dame School Choir who sang O Canada. Their performance was followed by a series of blessings and speeches. A press release stated the new school is named after St. Kateri, the first Native American to be canonized in the Catholic Church. She lived from 1656 to 1680, and passed away at the age of 23. St. Kateri is affectionately called the “Lily of the Mohawks.” Her name Tekawitha means “putting things in order.”

“During her short, profound life, St. Kateri was an exemplary model and witness to our Catholic faith,” said Board Chair Joe Becigneul. He noted the sod turning ceremony was a milestone for the project that honours St. Kateri, adds a growing and strong community in Morinville.

“But building new schools for our students is one of the most important investments we can make for the future of this community and the surrounding region that understands Catholic education in our Morinville schools,” said Becigneul. The Honourable Minister of Education David Eggen, spoke on behalf of the Government of Alberta. “Each individual school has a story and a significance in their community,” said Eggen. “It’s not just a school with bricks and glass and classrooms and desks and so forth, it’s a source of pride for a community. And a gathering place for families and a place to make friends for kids to get together and build relationships and skills that will have for the rest of their lives.”

Glen van Dijken, MLA for Barrhead-Morinville-Westlock, noted the occasion is a celebration for the community of Morinville. “Children are the lifeblood of a community and also the future of community,” said van Dijken. “A school is essentially a promise that the community has for the future.”

Mayor Barry Turner welcomed the newest addition to Morinville. “A new school brings new life into our community, and I’m excited to welcome this new addition to Morinville by the province as well,” he said. “This is a great start to Morinville’s new neighbour-

Lynne Rosychuk of Morinville is one of 10 extraordinary women who will be honored on International Women’s Day as a 2019 L’Oréal Paris Woman of Worth. The award recognizes Rosychuk’s work as president and co-founder of the Jessica Martel Memorial Foundation (JMMF), an organization dedicated to supporting vulnerable individuals and families experiencing domestic violence. Rosychuk’s daughter, Jessica Martel, was killed by her common-law partner on the day she planned to leave him in 2009.

Rosychuk is one of 10 honorees selected from hundreds of nominations. She was chosen for her work addressing a crucial community need and her passion in the area of family violence support. As an honouree, she joins esteemed alumnae of Canadian women who have shattered barriers, built and strengthened communities and worked passionately to make our world a better place.

“I don’t do this for the recognition, it’s for our community,” said Rosychuk. “It is for Jessica and others like her. But I am honored to share her story and legacy with a larger audience and grateful to L’Oreal for their support.”

She was surprised to be nominated by Community Engagement coordinator Teena Hugson. “I wasn’t expecting her to do that,” said Rosychuk. “I totally understand why she would want to, for the publicity and exposure our foundation is going to get at this crucial time is very big for us. To be able to have this huge platform to raise awareness of domestic violence and Jessica’s house ... I feel truly honored to be chosen for this.”

As an honoree, Rosychuk will receive $10,000 to support her charitable work and an all-expense paid trip for two to Toronto to attend a star-studded awards gala hosted by L’Oréal Paris on March 8. At that event a national honouree will receive an additional $10,000 award. JMMF executive director Jancee Isberg asked JMMF supporters to vote to recognize Lynne Rosychuk as the national honouree by visiting www.womenofworth.ca.

Rosychuk plans to invest her $10,000 honorarium in the JMMF. She feels the publicity around the Women Of Worth event is just as important. “That’s an amazing opportunity for us to reach more communities with our message about domestic violence and sharing that awareness,” she said. “For us, that’s huge. It goes across Canada. We’re pretty proud of where we are today, especially when we think about where we were when we first started. Now we’re building a 9,000 square foot house for families to be safe and have the hope and the healing that comes with that.” There will also be programming to help families be successful in staying away from the abusive lifestyle they left. She hopes it will be able to help a lot of families. She is excited about the potential opportunity to get $10,000 more for JMMF.

“It would be exciting.” Rosychuk said. “I’m sometimes in shock when I go to Jessie’s House and see what’s happening. It just takes my breath away every time I stand by that house.” As first JMMF had planned a 2,000 sq. ft. house. Because Jessie’s story resonated so with so many people, they were able to expand that plan.
Town of Morinville Councillor Sarah Hall engaged in informative conversation with town residents Nicole Poulin and Robin Alley-Buchner about the future of the sites surrounding the new Morinville Regional Recreational Facility. The panel photo showed a draft plan for three large areas of future development, a large toboggan hill and two storm ponds. The development sites will be used for parks and recreation purposes and will not consist of residential areas.

According to the information collected the top 5 priorities for indoor facilities are: 1- walking/running tracks; 2- leisure swimming pools, 3- fitness/wellness facilities, 4- 25m swimming tanks and 5 - gymnasium type spaces. For outdoor facilities, the results were: 1- walking/cycling trail system, 2- picnic areas, 3- nature-interpreted trails, 4- tobogan hills, and 5- open spaces. Other items that ranked high included library, indoor playgrounds, outdoor pool/spray park and campgrounds.

Town and area residents are encouraged to be a planner and assist with deciding on the best sites for various amenities. For example — where future picnic areas should be, or what the areas around the new Recreation Facility should be used for. The Master Plan will then be finalized based on data collected.

On Feb. 20, the negotiating teams from Sturgeon County and the Town of Morinville continued their discussions to better deliver services between the two municipalities, in accordance with the Modernized Municipal Government Act.

The meeting focused on identifying and prioritizing current programs and services, provided by each municipality, that could lead to potentially improved service delivery through the Inter-municipal Collaboration Framework (ICF). This list will now be the focus of future discussions to develop cost-effective and mutually beneficial services for residents of our respective municipalities. As well as potential programs and services that would benefit through broader deliberations with sub-regional municipalities.

According to Morinville Mayor Barry Turner, “today was an important step in building consensus and prioritizing which services will be examined in greater detail to the benefit of our residents.”

“It is important that we continue to work closely together to better understand our respective positions and that our shared commitment will provide lasting benefits to the residents of Sturgeon County and the Town of Morinville,” said Sturgeon County Mayor Alanna Hnatiw.

The Town of Morinville is represented by Councillors Nicole Boutestein and Stephen Dafoe while Sturgeon County is represented by Councillor Karen Shaw and Deputy Mayor Patrick D. Tighe, in addition to the Mayor of each municipality.
The owner of the Espresso Barn appealed directly to Morinville council to resolve the access problem to his business on 100 Street, pointing out it is “the only business with no front access to 100 Street.”

When the business was approved, the lane (alley) a half block east of 100 Street was designated as the access to the drive-in business. Referring to the condition of the alley — “a real headache” — business owner Ken Langdone said the plans to upgrade the alley this year will see it closed for three months. “I would like to know how I will have access for my customers.”

CAO Stéphane Labonne addressed the businesses on 100 Street further south than the Espresso Barn area, noting they did not have accesses directly onto 100 Street however he ignored Langdone’s comments from the public gallery referring to the businesses in the same neighbourhood as his. Labonne didn’t address the continued existence of those accesses.

Langdone told council the property has been in the family of his landlord for 30 years during which time they paid taxes to the town “for the sidewalk, the lights and light posts and including the pavement in front of the property. I would think they should have the right to use the pavement like everyone else.” He said the landlord applied to have the street access installed on Oct. 11 of last year and the town has left it in limbo since then.

On a separate agenda item later in the meeting Planning Department staff advised council that 100 Ave businesses are subject to the access plan (no direct street access) however 100 Street is not included in that access plan. Council will consider the issue on Feb. 26.

Foundation supports vulnerable individuals, families experiencing domestic violence

Rosychuk has been a passionate advocate for family violence issues following her daughter’s tragic murder. Jessica’s death was preventable. She had a plan to leave her abusive relationship, but had nowhere safe to go.

Since 2012, Rosychuk and a core group of volunteers have been raising funds to build a safe house to support those impacted by family violence in the Sturgeon region. In September of 2018 the JMMF broke ground on Jessie’s House, a first stage emergency shelter, which is expected to begin sheltering individuals and families in 2020. It was made possible through the generosity of area residents and communities, including a donation of land from the Town of Morinville. Located in Morinville, Jessie’s House will be the first safe house in the Sturgeon County region. The JMMF supports vulnerable individuals and families experiencing domestic violence in Sturgeon County, Bon Accord, Gibbons, Legal, Morinville, Redwater, Alexander First Nation, Edmonton Garrison and the City of St. Albert.

More than half the funds required to build Jessie’s House have been raised. A campaign to raise $1 million dollars by January 2020 is currently under way. The funds are required to complete and furnish the house and support three years of operating. The JMMF has three staff: full time Executive Director and Community Engagement co-ordinator, part-time Outreach Worker. At this time, the Director and Community Engagement co-ordinator Rosychuk and a board members and community volunteers complete the majority of work. Rosychuk said it is a volunteer driven organization.

Prior to the spring of 2018, a team of dedicated board members and community volunteers completed the majority of work. Rosychuk said it is a volunteer working board, an “amazing group of people.”

Jessie’s House is the result of countless hours of shelter tours and consultations with a multitude of experts from the RCMP, experts on safety and security, shelter experts, municipal planners, interior design, real estate law and other specialists.

Major fundraisers planned for 2019 include the Morinville Dairy Queen’s second annual JMMF Blizzard Day Feb. 18, JMMF’s seventh annual Jessica Martel Memorial Run June 23 and the annual Break Free from Domestic Violence Gala Nov. 16. In addition to volunteering with JMMF, Rosychuk is raising Jessie’s three children and taking a course in gourmet catering. She does a lot of volunteer catering for the church she belongs to and loves to cook. And who knows, a catering business might be able to provide stepping-stone jobs and a place to learn skills to people staying at Jessie’s house.

Town expected to create implementation plan for growth-stunting ASP

Morinville town council appears to be starting to understand that its California-style Coeur de Morinville Area Structure Plan of urban frontage controlled multi-storey buildings and facades along cobblestone parking lots and sidewalks with street vendors and outdoor furniture is stunting the growth of its downtown. The revelation emerged at council on Feb. 19 which, coincidentally, was after several weeks of -30 degree temperatures. Coun. Sarah Hall stated she liked the plan.

During the discussion it was noted that several development permits had been issued for renovatons or even demolition, which should have triggered the removal of 100 Ave. access to the business but the accesses remain. Hall suggested that if the standards cannot be enforced, council needs to do something to set the standards in stone so they are followed.

Councillor Stephane Labonne pointed out the Area Structure Plan is in a bylaw and the standards are in the bylaw. Planning department staff pointed out that all policies within the Coeur de Morinville do apply but noted that 100 Street is not included in the access plan, just 100 Avenue (Heyy 642).

Coun. Scott Richardson, the only councillor with an operating business on an owned commercial property, told council it appears the Coeur de Morinville has “stunted growth” on 100 Ave. because of all the regulations.

It was pointed out that the call for two or more storey buildings with parking in the rear is impossible because many parts of both sides of 100 Ave have no back alley access to such parking. Labonne said that in all the discussions he has had with prospective developers, “not one” has mentioned Coeur de Morinville problems and that developers, “not one” has mentioned Coeur de Morinville problems.

Mayor Barry Turner suggested the town do some work with the business community to determine the best trigger to attract development to the 100 Ave area. Council later heard that Council Labonne pointed out the Coeur de Morinville was passed years ago, with the new lighting and banners to accompany the paving improvements, which made a significant difference to that area. Turner pointed out that in all the discussions he has had with prospective developers, they thought nothing showing developers are confused by the regulations.

Mayor Barry Turner suggested the town do some work with the business community to determine the best trigger to attract development to the 100 Ave area. Council later heard that Council Labonne stated that any successful main street plan has to consider whether the plan’s vision still exists.

Second oldest non-fortified community in Alberta 100 Ave. area. He told council that Morinville is the second oldest non-fortified community in Alberta.

Planning department staff pointed out that in all the discussions he has had with prospective developers, “not one” has mentioned Coeur de Morinville.

The recommendation that in all the discussions he has had with prospective developers, it was developed decades before most — “lots and the lot sizes and designs in the downtown reflect that in all the discussions he has had with prospective developers.”

That it was developed decades before most — “lots and the lot sizes and designs in the downtown reflect that in all the discussions he has had with prospective developers.”
