After five years, boil water advisory lifted for Alcomdale

After five years, Alberta Health Services has approved removing the boil advisory for the Hamlet of Alcomdale residents and has granted permission to re-use the drinking water supply, effective Nov. 7.

Gregory St ערפאת - 2013, after the untreated well water failed tests for giardia and cryptosporidium which posed health concerns.

Since that time, Sturgeon County Council and Administration have been working on an action plan to create a permanent solution to the community’s water issues.

As part of the action plan, Council approved the water pipeline route as recommended by Stantec Engineering. The water pipeline extends from Township Road 554, and up Range Road 264 into Alcomdale. This waterline now provides water to the Advanced Party, the first Canadian troops sent to Korea in October of 1950. The names of 516 Canadian Soldiers whose lives were lost are listed in the Canadian History book of the Korean War. McIvor spoke of certain memories of the war, his family members who also fought in various wars and those he lost. He says he enjoys returning with the Korea Veterans Association to see how they are honoured to this day by the Korean people, and he’s thrilled how the country has thrived and developed since the war.

The ceremony took place near a transit stop on 97 Street and 157 Avenue under a steady snowfall and crisp breeze. A sailor from First Battalion, Princess Patricia’s Canadian Light Infantry were there to wave the dignitaries and place signs that read “Canadian Forces Trail” on the streets. Armoured Vehicles to mark the occasion.

“This is an idea that always made sense to me,” said Edmonton Mayor Don Iveson. “So I was very happy to provide a letter of support to Councillor Dziadyk and the Edmonton Salutes Committee. I’m glad that we moved quickly to have it in place for Veterans week this year.”

Committee. I’m glad that we moved quickly to have them in place since June, but we wanted to wait until the start of Veterans week to unveil this sign.”

One of the military members present was Landing Seaman Yoshichi Cruz of 1 Field Ambulance. “It’s nice to be recognized by the community and the city and have a street named after us,” said LS Cruz. “I just want to say thank you to the people of Edmonton for recognizing the Canadian Armed Forces.”

The idea to rename a city street recognizing military members began about 10 years ago, but the initiative was bogged down with a variety of challenges. During the 2017 municipal election campaign, urban planner and Navy Reserve Jon Dziadyk pledged to make it happen if he was elected.

“Today is a big highlight for me,” said Dziadyk, who is now Ward 3 Councillor in Edmonton. “We had this honorary name in place since 2016, but we wanted to wait until the start of Veterans week to unveil this sign.”

The ceremony was attended by over 50 people who stood in the cold with soldiers to witness the ceremony.

“It’s great to see all of the support we have here today,” said Dziadyk. “We have a military presence which is so important, because of course we’re honouring the military while also honouring the heritage of 97 Street.”

Fort Air Partnership Communications director Godfrey Huybregts (Right) shares air monitoring information with participants at the Life in the Heartland Oct. 29 community information evening in Gibbons.

Audit shows Fort Air providing credible, high quality air monitoring data, says Blaney

A provincial audit by Alberta Environment and Parks gave the performance of Fort Air Partnership’s (FAP) air monitoring network high marks. The audit was done May 22 to June 1 of this year. FAP gave a public report on the audit last week.

On Nov. 6 FAP reported that of the 52 analyzers that were audited, three fine particulate matter (PM2.5) analyzers did not meet audit requirements. Follow-up investigation by both FAP and the auditors could not duplicate or determine the cause of the issue, so these three analyzers will be re-audited at a later date. In addition to the analyzer tests, the auditor checked 92 critical items and 56 non-critical items. Only one critical item and five non-critical items were given improvement recommendations.

“These are extremely good results that reinforce to ourselves and the public that we are continuously providing credible, high quality, local ambient air monitoring data,” said FAP executive director Nadine Blaney. She noted that the issues identified in the audit did not affect data accuracy. The items listed for improvement were dealt with as soon as the audit results were received in the beginning of June.

“It’s our policy to address any items identified for improvement as quickly as we can, so that the data we produce retains its accuracy, credibility and value to the public, industry, government and researchers,” said Blaney.

Auditing is an important part of FAP’s comprehensive quality assurance program. In addition to these annual audits of the monitoring network, FAP conducts regular internal performance reviews and independent Quality Assurance Plan audits. FAP also performs other quality assurance activities such as challenging continuous gas analyzers with known gas concentrations daily and calibrating them monthly.

FAP’s Technical Working Group and air monitoring data analyst also review data quality indicators every month.

The audit report included the following statements regarding local continuous air monitoring stations. All gas pollutant analyzers audited met audit criteria. Most of the sensors met audit criteria except where noted.

Redwater Station: The site documentation requires a minor update: the equipment list states a Sharp 5030 in service for PM2.5 but the station contains a Grimm sampler.

RR220 Station: The ambient temperature sensor was outside the specified tolerance based on audit criteria.

Bon Accord Station: The air conditioner was not operational and the station temperature rose to 29.0 C during the audit.

Gibbons Station: The Sharp 5030 nephelometer zero was outside the tolerance specified by the manufacturer.

FAP is a not for profit society that operates 10 continuous air monitoring stations in and around Alberta’s Industrial Heartland. This data enables the calculation of a current and forecasted Air Quality Health Index (AQHI) for the local area. It also operates 55 passive monitoring stations within the Heartland.

Touchless vehicle wash opens in Morinville

by Grant Cree

High Gears Touchless Wash opened Oct. 27 on 100 Street in Morinville. The owner Terry Pysyk was happy to meet dozens of new customers driving a variety of trucks and cars that needed a refreshing wash. "I think we did about 70 vehicles on the first day, so people know we are here now," said Pysyk.

What makes this vehicle wash different from competitors is the intelligent, 3D profiling technology that provides a custom wash for vehicles ranging from small cars to large pickup trucks.

"There was a need for this business here." This is the first wash of its kind in Morinville. "This will actually wash your car," Pysyk laughed. He explained the IQ touch-free vehicle washing system includes a 3D scan that captures each vehicle’s unique shape, resulting in a more efficient and safer wash.

He pointed to a couple of large computer monitors on his desk, and tapped a few buttons. Moments later, the silhouette of a pick up truck appeared. "Here’s a truck that was in here a few minutes ago," said Pysyk. "The 3D scanner follows the contour of your vehicle so it will stop at the wheel rims on a pick up, and it will actually turn around and wash the back window. It’ll even go around the bumper hitch."

Terry nodded proudly as he gazed at the monitors. He noted the wash times are about eight or nine minutes on pickups and SUVs. "Every vehicle gets the same wash because this system follows the vehicle outline," said Pysyk. "It knows where the rims are and it knows where the bumper is. The scanning system will adjust for different size vehicles from large pick up trucks to small cars."

The 3-D profiling technology scans each vehicle on its first pass, while also applying soap or tire cleaner. Once that’s done, the system has calculated the vehicle size and begins washing with high pressure rotating heads. They apply specifically formulated chemicals that remove road grime off a vehicle.

"The machine stays about 10 inches away from your vehicle the whole time, so it’s safer," said Pysyk. He invites residents to stop by and give it a try. Outside the two 7-foot, 6-inch wash bays are pay stations that accept debit, credit cards and cash. Prices vary from $10 for a basic wash to $16 for an ultimate wash.

New owners of Coach’s Corner see opportunity to do good things in community

By Grant Cree

A retired soldier is inspired with his new mission as the owner of Coach’s Corner. Kal McDonald and his wife Carmen bought the popular Morinville sports bar and grill in March, and they’ve been busy ever since. “It wasn’t long after we bought this bar that I said to my wife we have a real opportunity here to do a lot of good things in the community,” said McDonald. “There are so many things that we can do through this aspect of being owners to help support a lot of community activities.”

A long-time resident of Morinville, McDonald served with Princess Patricia’s Canadian Light Infantry (PPCLI) and during 2009-2010, experienced combat in Afghanistan. He released from the military in 2015, and became a stay at home dad to help raise his young family. His life changed one night last December when he and some friends visited their favourite place: Coach’s Corner. The previous owner, Lawrence Giffin (now a town councillor) sat down with McDonald. “We were sitting there at the bar chatting and chatting, and he said he was getting ready to retire from this business. So we worked out a deal,” said McDonald.

The next day, McDonald and his wife visited Giffin at the bar to assure him they were both serious about being the new owners of Coach’s Corner. “After that, we met again to do a walk-through and made it happen. It was a good fit, and Lawrence still helps us out, he’s always there for advice. We took over ownership on March 1st, and it was pretty seamless,” said McDonald.

New owners immediately got to work creating a more open design. “We started painting, we ripped down a wall, and did some other things to give it a pub feel. We’re still working on that,” said McDonald. “We opened up the bar area so when there’s an event or a big hockey game, people can see it on the large drop-down screen instead of watching it on the little TVs,” he said. One of the first things they did was construct a new gaming room with VLT’s. “The room is surrounded by walls and is a private area for people to do their own business.

Coach’s was my go to place after I came back from Afghanistan,” McDonald recalled. “I would meet some buddies here to relax and have some beer and wings on Wednesday nights. It was a safe place for us, it was comfortable for the people that we hang out with.”

He appreciated that Giffin, the former owner, sponsored The Dirty Ball Bags, a local softball team comprised of military veterans, including McDonald. “Coach’s was our go to spot after the ball games, and after my wife and I bought the bar, it got very busy.

The McDonald’s decided that operating the bar would be a great way to connect with residents by hosting local events and sponsoring local teams. “We hold smaller events here like birthday parties, and we want to do more community activities here.” One of their goals is to sponsor parents with kids who want to join a local U5 soccer team. “The equipment is very expensive for some parents, so we’d like to help pay so they can participate. We’re planning draws and prizes and giveaways to help cover the cost of U5 soccer. It’s such a basic sport that kids can learn fundamentals of running and teamwork.”

Hosting local events is something the McDonald’s love to do. “Last year, the bar owners were involved in the Danny Getzlaf Community Spirit event. An active community volunteer diagnosed with ALS, Danny participated in a fundraising walk for the cure. Coach’s Corner hosted the Community Spirit event entertainment, the Lions Club meat draw, a silent auction, and a raffle for great prizes. “We also set up an ice bucket dunk tank in the parking lot,” said McDonald. “It was a huge success with hundreds of people, and that really opened my eyes.”

The annual Saints Hope Charity Auction is another local event traditionally held at Coach’s Corner. The new owners are looking forward to hosting it on the evening of Nov. 17. It promises to be an evening of high-energy fun as professional auctioneer Brad Ward sparks interest in a variety of donated items.

“We hope to have our own open floor concept, it works great for events like that,” said McDonald. “This year it’s going to be a little different.” He explained that because of the renovations, there will be seating for up to 90 people to participate in the auction action.

“Our customers are great. This community has so many amazing people, but you don’t always see that at local businesses or events,” said McDonald. “So when you come here, you see a whole different side of them with real laughter. People enjoying themselves with their friends and other customers. That’s what it’s all about.”

Gibbons works with Bruderheim, Lamont to prepare regional climate change adaptation plan

The Town of Bruderheim is thrilled to kick off a unique regional partnership with Lamont and Gibbons to help prepare for the effects of climate change, such as flooding and potential impacts on infrastructure. “A regional climate change adaptation plan is a great opportunity for inter-municipal collaboration,” says Bruderheim Mayor Karl Hauch. “We’re looking forward to seeing the benefits for all communities involved.”

In 2016, the Town of Bruderheim was among a handful of Alberta communities to be selected in the Climate Resilience Express program. As a result, the All One Sky Foundation facilitated a climate change adaptation workshop in the community, and Bruderheim was provided with a climate resilience action plan. “We really wanted to build on this plan and felt that partnering with our neighbours was a critical step in doing that,” says Jill Yanch, Bruderheim’s Outreach & Communications Specialist, who’s heading the regional adaptation project. “I’m very excited about the project. Our first meetings have proven that leadership in Lamont and Gibbons is very forward-thinking and ready to take on this challenge with those of us in Bruderheim.”

The partnership is set up to be a great fit. The three municipalities are similar in size, under 3,500 people, and located within Alberta’s Industrial Heartland. The process will uncover common risks and vulnerabilities and allow the partners to pool resources and share knowledge.

“Climate change adaptation will be very different for small municipalities in comparison to cities, where much of the attention is currently focused,” adds Yanch. “Through this project, we will get a clearer picture of what it will mean for small towns. The approach we’re taking is very different from what’s typical so far—it will be a small community solution, driven by small communities.”

The project, slated for completion by Fall of 2019, will result in a regional climate change adaptation plan and a variety of other tools to help the partners spread awareness of the issues that will most affect them. Once the plan is complete, the partners will decide together how to move forward.

James Edward O’Hara
July 16, 1951 - November 2, 2018

James (Jim) passed away peacefully in the company of his family from kidney failure. He lived a fulfilling life as a friend, brother, husband and grandfather. Jim worked hard, laughed often and cared for those around him his whole life. In keeping with his nature, and at his request, immediate family will each remember him in their own way. Those wishing to honor his life are encouraged to hang a bird feeder, spend time with loved ones, listen to a favorite old country song or watch the sun set after a hard day of work. That is what Jim would wish for you.

Driver dies in head-on collision on Highway 28

On Nov. 2, the Morinville RCMP attended a serious two vehicle collision which claimed the life of a 25-year-old man.

At 6:40 p.m., the RCMP responded to a complaint of a collision on Highway 28, just north of Township Road 570. Investigation shows that a car traveling southbound lost control and collided with a truck traveling northbound.

The man driving the car was pronounced deceased on scene. The driver of the truck sustained non-life threatening injuries and was transported for further assessment to an area hospital. Neither vehicle had passengers.

The highway was extremely icy due to weather conditions at the time of the collision and road conditions are deemed to be a contributing factor to this collision.

No fireworks at Lite-Up

Fireworks have been cancelled for Lite Up the Nite Festival in Morinville and replaced by an outdoor concert by Kris Feniak has been scheduled. Mayor Alanna Hnatiw was a panelist at the 28th Commonwealth Agriculture Conference at the Edmonton Expo Centre on November 6th. The Mayor addressed concerns about the supply of sufficient food, “The Capital Region needs to consider two key elements; the Region’s role as a supplier to national and international requirements as well as the opportunities to foster the development of local food economy in response to growing interest in local food market.” The conference focused on the success of Alberta and Canada’s Agriculture industries while proving a forum for discussing mutual successes and challenges in agriculture with delegates from Commonwealth counties around the world, including developed and developing nations.

Council Welcomes New CAO Reegan McCullough

Mayor Alanna Hnatiw and Council welcomed the new Chief Administration Officer (CAO), Reegan McCullough to Sturgeon County on Monday, November 5th. Reegan is Alberta born and raised, living in smaller communities including High Prairie, Slave Lake, Grande Prairie as well as Edmonton and Calgary. He joins us most recently from Niagara Falls, Ontario and is excited to be returning to his Alberta Roots. Reegan was the CEO of the Niagara Parks Commission. He believes in the importance of relationships, the power of working together, respect, trust and privilege of serving our community.

Please join us in welcoming Reegan in his new position as the CAO of Sturgeon County.

Dale Nally to represent UCP in Morinville-St. Albert for provincial election

Dale Nally from St. Albert is the United Conservative Party (UCP) candidate in the Morinville-St. Albert riding for the 2019 provincial election. UCP leader Jason Kenney issued the following statement Nov. 7 regarding Nally’s nomination.

“Over the last two days more than 630 United Conservative members in Morinville-St. Albert cast ballots for their preferred candidate for the next election from amongst four great contestants. I would like to congratulate Dale Nally on winning this highly competitive race.”

“Dale has spent the last 15 years in St. Albert where he and his wife Randa have raised three children. Dale holds a Masters Degree from Athabasca University and understands the issues most important to the constituents of Morinville-St. Albert. He is a valuable addition to the United Conservative team as we work to present Albertans with a common-sense alternative to the NDP. I am pleased to welcome Dale as the United Conservative candidate in Morinville-St. Albert.”

“I would also like to thank Joseph Gosselin, Donald Rigney, Trana Jones, and their teams for their participation in the democratic process and dedication to our movement.”

Ava Harris of Gibbons withdrew her nomination prior to the vote to choose a candidate. The new Morinville-St. Albert constituency includes the town of Sturgeon County east of Hwy 2. Under the present boundary configuration, it is in the Athabasca-Sturgeon-Rockyview constituency.

Sturgeon County, St. Albert continue to discuss issues

The City of St. Albert and Sturgeon County’s joint Intermunicipal Affairs Committee (IAC), consisting of all members of both municipal Councils, met on Oct. 31 to discuss matters of mutual interest. At the meeting, the IAC approved the 2018-19 Joint Opportunities Task Force Workplan, which addresses intermunicipal opportunities for items like Villeneuve Airport and Ray Gibbon Drive advocacy. The IAC also approved the Intermunicipal Collaboration Framework (ICF) Project Charter and the ICF Task Force Terms of Reference to undertake the completion of a Recreation Intermunicipal Collaboration Framework over the coming months.

During an in-camera session, the IAC discussed a land matter and received an update from the Annexation Negotiating Committee. Following the in-camera session, the IAC voted to await the outcome of annexation to conduct detailed planning of areas subject to annexation and rescinded the intermunicipal referral process.

This was the third meeting of the two Councils, since the October 2017 municipal election.

“Through our collaboration, we continue to make purposeful strides in areas that will mutually benefit the residents of Sturgeon County and the City of St. Albert,” says Sturgeon County Mayor Alanna Hnatiw.

“The relationship between our two municipalities continues to strengthen,” says Deputy Mayor Jacquie Hansen. “Together we are exploring the various opportunities that continue to present themselves through our focused partnership.”

The next IAC meeting is scheduled to take place on Feb. 27.
Area musicians return to perform locally as part of Feel Good Jacket

Although Feel Good Jacket is less than one year old, the Alternative-Rock band has already released its first cd, plays regularly in Morinville and Edmonton, and has gigs booked across Alberta and British Columbia. Musical influences that can be heard in their performances are classic hard rock, punk and pop punk, ska and reggae.

Rob Kaup, who is from Sturgeon County west of Morinville, has a 1978 Peavey T60 and a 1997 modified Fender Telecaster as his main guitar and quite a collection of other musical gear.

Bass guitarist Jacob Bigelow is from Redwater. Lead vocalist is Danielle Edge. She and her brother, Jon, the newest member of the band, grew up on Stony Plain. Jon pounds out the rhythm on Pearl drums and Zildjian symbols.

Danielle and Rob met at a weekday jam at a local pub in 2014. In January 2015 Rob began recording some tracks for Danielle’s solo music project, in April she joined Rob’s main gig with a touring country-rock band. A year later they set out on their own, creating a duo called Two Bad Apples. For nearly three years this project was very successful as far as local cover bands go, but it left them wanting something more.

Feel Good Jacket began officially in January of 2018. Rob and Danielle had planned a trip to the United States, but although they had not done anything illegal, were turned back at the border. They went home and began a cd. Working on Battle Rock, they wrote a song a day for the entire month of January. These included Power Trip, The Bully, and Monkey See-Monkey Do, which is being played by online radio.

Some writing is not a placid activity, as they argue. Recording of Battle Rock took place from February through April, with Rob playing all the instruments. He then did the mixing and mastering until the end of August.

During that time, in late June, bass player Jacob joined the band, saying he was “looking for a band to become a part of.” The band’s name is “Feel Good Jacket.”

Battle Rock is the newly released cd by Feel Good Jacket, a band featuring local talent and performing in the area.

Of Peace and Freedom

By Bruce Aitchison

Freedom is better than peace. We remember those who fought and died, as well as those who survived, because they fought for our freedom. This is so much harder than achieving peace.

It’s easier to have peace. All nations need do is give in to bullying foreign powers and do whatever they want. But this isn’t a satisfying way to live, as any bully-child will attest. It takes much more effort to win one’s freedom than to acquiesce to a dictator’s demands. This is why our military personnel deserve our eternal gratitude and praise.

Sincerely yours,

author Bruce Aitchison
