Thurtild County Fire Department Promotes new Captain -- Chief Dave Fiddler (right) promoted John Erdman to Captain and Fire Safety Codes Officer in Newbrook on Dec. 19 during regular weekly training evening. Captain Erdman has been with Thurtild County Emergency Services for more than four years. In that time he has maintained a high level of performance: attending a wide variety of calls across the County and undertaking considerable training during his service,” said Fiddler. “I look forward to his continued contributions to life and safety within Thurtild County. Before joining Thurtild County Emergency Services, Erdman was the Adjutant (Chief Administrative Officer) for 1 Military Police Regiment. Erdman has lived near Radway for 20 years where he raises cattle. He is a home inspector and owns Reliable Home Inspections. In his spare time Erdman enjoys quadding and riding his motorcycle. Thurtild County Emergency Services is a paid-on-call Fire Department responding to emergencies throughout Thurtild County. Firehalls are located in Thurtild, Newbrook, Long Lake and Radway. There are approximately 40 active members. New members and inquiries are always welcome.

The impact is that you can expect to receive your copy of the local newspaper one day later than you have in the past.

We will continue to be the only publisher to distribute newspapers at no charge to residents and businesses throughout Sturgeon, Thorhild and Smoky Lake Counties – including the towns of Morinville, Redwater, Gibbons, Bon Accord, Legal, and Smoky Lake as well as the communities of Cardiff, Waskatenau, Vina, Spedden as well as other hamlets and subdivisions.

Pay Your Property Taxes Monthly

The Tax Installment Payment Plan (TIPP) allows Sturgeon County property owners to pay their property tax in monthly installments rather than a single payment.

Monthly installments break your property tax into more manageable amounts, which may make it easier to budget, rather than a single payment once a year.

Sturgeon County must receive your signed application before January 10 for the plan to be effective that same year. If your application is received after January 10, Sturgeon County may require a partial payment of taxes or it will become effective the following year.

You can join the plan if:
- your property tax account is not in arrears;
- you have cheque privileges at a financial institution;
- you do not currently pay your taxes through a mortgage company (PLT).

Details about TIPP as well as the pre-authorized debit form are available at sturgeoncounty.ca or contact Sturgeon County Centre at 780-939-4321 or by email at taxation@sturgeoncounty.ca.

2020 Dog Licensing and Renewals

You can login using your fire permit or bulk water profile, otherwise you will need to create a new profile first.

Snowplowing Priorities

No matter what the weather conditions, our top priority is to maintain safe and driveable roads for our residents. Sturgeon County is committed to providing a high level of snow removal service throughout the winter season. We have carefully planned levels of winter road service to combat the diverse weather conditions we see each year.

- During the winter months, Transportation crews work 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. plowing, sanding and clearing roads.
- After a significant snowfall (10 cm or 4 in), our plow operations increase to 24 hours a day, seven days per week.
- A continuous snowfall that results in significant snow accumulation (less than 10 cm) may also require plow operations to operate as a “recognized snowfall event.”

Cuts caused by government spending

Letter to the editor:
The recent spate of provincial and municipal cuts make us wonder why all this is happening now. The answer is that our governments have spent and borrowed too much and raised voter expectations too high.

Both the Progressive Conservative and NDP governments spent and borrowed money like a teenager with a new credit card. Consequently, citizens became used to this artificially high standard of government services. The NDP also went on a civil servant hiring spree during the past four years. Since government employees are unionized, this gives them more power over their jobs. As a result, they paid more than the average non-unionized wage earner.

And though I feel that front line workers shouldn’t be cut, we face the implausible fact that either we make the tough choices now or be so indolent to international banks that we will never be able to pay off their usury.

One of the proverbs in the Bible says that the borrower is slave to the lender. We need to ask ourselves if we want to be serfs or masters of our province. There is no third alternative.

It was finally over. Santa leaned back on his formerly beautifully upholstered sleigh seat. He tried not to think less of Canada forcing him to replace the brass tacks holding the covering on the overfilled seat — carbon tacks just didn’t feel the same.

Everyone knows that Santa doesn’t smoke, but as the sweet smell of pipe tobacco curried his ears, he felt both relief and sadness. It was Santa’s last ride.

There was just too much BureauCratic Stuff. Of B.S. as it is known by his crew of 90 or so. He’d known what he was doing for many years, yet just tired of looking forward — there was no glow in his heart. His cheerful shouts of greeting and farewell sounded hollow to his ears.

Christmas needed the pipe tobacco.

Santa leaned back lost in his thoughts ... it wasn’t so much the work of loading things out of the warehouse and into houses. It was all the paperwork. Sadistics Canada somehow got his contact information and wanted to know everything from the number of employees to bathrooms to his work hours. And don’t even get started on the Canada Revenue Agony which appeared determined to label him as a capitalist here. No capitalist here.

The loss of the muffler apparatus hadn’t inspired the comment, it was those solar foot structures in the 1950’s. Timers because Imperial Oil contracted Bird Construction to put up the 650 square foot structures in the 1950’s.

Christmas needed the pipe tobacco.

As they went back in the house, they would notice a few small packages under the evergreen plastic tree.

Santa silently slipped away into the dark sky.

Test cattle feed to make a nutrition plan

When forage quality is as poor as it is this year, it is especially important to test feed to make sure cattle get the nutrition they need. “Cows’ needs don’t change, but every year the feed changes,” said Lotte Kingsmill of Diamond K Consulting during the Lakeland Agricultural Research Association (LARA) Feed What You Need presentation in Smokey Lake Dec. 16. “Every farm has different feeds, and there’s 100 ways to meet the cows’ needs.”

As a feed consultant, she works to get producers the maximum pounds of beef to sell off their farms: one calf per cow per year at its maximum pounds for its age. That is done by providing the right feed for each type of animal (bred cow, bred heifer, steer, bull) according to their age, body condition scores (BCS), and breed. The feed test will pay for itself through proper management of the herd.

“It doesn’t make sense not to test,” Kingsmill said, “You can only manage what you can measure.” Knowing the forage quality means knowing its ability to support livestock and what needs to be added to it for proper nutrition.

She said cattle is good for energy, but it needs to be limited because too much fat destroys the rumen microbes. Peas are “awesome” because they provide a lot of protein and are slow to digest.

Kingsmill included stage of gestation and weather in her feed calculations. And she did not overlook water, noting that while yearling bulls can probably eat more than they will eat in a spring drought will be very different from the watery growth seen last August.

Kingsmill also provided numbers measuring the digestibility, nutrients and energy in barley, hay and straw as well as information on nitrates and mycotoxins.

“Test feed to make sure cattle get the nutrition they need,” said Kingdon. In the photo are Kingdon (L-R), councillors Wayne Croswell, Joyce Pierce and Cheryl Pasay, Reeve Kevin Kingdon and landsman Doug Kingdon and landsman Nadelle Oleksyn Dec. 10. “We’re delighted to present you with a cheque for $1,000 and two hampers of food for your Christmas to present you with a cheque for $1,000 and two hampers of food for your Christmas project,” said Kingdon. In the photo are Kingdon (L-R), councillors Wayne Croswell, Joyce Pierce and Cheryl Pasay, Reeve Kevin Grumetza, Councillor Richard Filipechuck and Oleksyn.
