Will agreements create rec funding for town?

Town of Redwater council is working to have its Intermunicipal Development Plan (IDP) and Intermunicipal Collaboration Framework agreements (ICF) with Sturgeon County in place by the April 1 deadline set by the provincial government.

In the past the town has struggled to negotiate funding from Sturgeon County to cover facilities according to use by each municipality’s residents. Asked if that was addressed in the new plans, Redwater mayor Mel Smith said, “We are not at that stage yet. We are just laying the groundwork to get to a funding model. Possibly by September.”

Town manager Larry Davidson said the ICF agreement (bylaw) creates a template for negotiation of agreements such as recreation funding.

“Once the ICF agreement is established, our next step is to negotiate a funding agreement for recreation,” said Davidson. “We will also be negotiating agreements for Library funding, fire service agreements, and transportation agreements. In the future, we will also explore other opportunities to share costs for services which are mutually beneficial.”

Redwater recreational facilities include Pembina Place, the outdoor swimming pool, ball diamonds and soccer pitches. Corporate Services manager Diane Pyrmeny provided the following net costs for operating those facilities.

In 2019 the Pembina Place net loss was $670,345 (includes $265,000 debenture payment) and the pool net loss was $139,999 for a total of $810,354.

The costs to maintain the ball diamonds and soccer pitches are not tracked independently. The town’s Parks department net loss for last year was $392,453.

Pyrmeny reported Sturgeon County’s total contribution for recreation for 2019 was $670,345. The 2019 pool patterns were 38 percent from Redwater and 22 percent from Sturgeon County with the remaining 40 percent from other municipalities. Residency of Pembina Place users was not available from the town before press time.

Council passed second reading of the ICF bylaw March 5, following a formal public hearing on it which no members of the public attended. A dozen people had attended the IDP’s information open house held Feb. 25.

During its March 3 meeting council also passed first reading of the ICF, which did not require a public hearing. A special council meeting will be held March 31 to consider final readings of the IDP and ICF bylaws. That provides Sturgeon County council time to consider and pass the town's corresponding IDP and ICF bylaws and advise Redwater of any amendments.

The province required all municipalities with shared boundaries to develop ICFs. Municipalities have the option to choose to implement IDPs. The Towns of Legal, Bon Accord, Gibbons and Redwater applied for an Alberta Community Partnership grant for $200,000 and hired Vicinia Planning and Engagement Inc. consultants to develop and write their agreements with Sturgeon County.

The ICF is a statutory land use plan, with two (or more) municipalities that share common borders. IDPs help to reduce the possibility of any future land use conflicts between municipalities.

The ICF agreement is to develop a process for negotiations to establish agreements for intermunicipal services, to work collaboratively with neighbouring municipalities to plan, deliver and fund intermunicipal services, find efficiencies in providing local services, and balance benefits and burdens (or more) municipalities that share common borders.

One driver died after a double collision involving four trucks on Highway 28.

On March 4 at approximately 8 p.m., Redwater RCMP responded to the fourth vehicle collision just east of Redwater. A truck westbound on Highway 28 collided with an eastbound truck. After the initial collision another truck heading eastbound slowed down to avoid the collision scene and was rear-ended by a semi-tractor.

A 73-year-old lone male occupant from Kenora, Ont., in the westbound truck was pronounced deceased at the scene. The lone male in a truck from the initial collision was transported to hospital via EMS with serious-life threatening injuries.

The lone male occupant of the truck that was rear-ended was transferred to hospital via EMS with serious non-life threatening injuries. The semi-tractor driver was not via EMS with serious non-life threatening injuries. The semi-tractor driver was not

Water, ice in downtown street gutters gets mixed views by council

Redwater mayor Mel Smith and councillor Rob Olsen reacted oppositely to resident Lorne Wog’s letter to the editor published in the March 4 edition of The Review. Wog criticized the town’s clearing of ice and snow because of the large amount of water and ice in front of some downtown stores.

“He’s right,” Smith said during the March 3 council meeting. “We know every year we have to clean the curb and gutter. We’ve got to do better.”

“It snows here,” argued Olsen, pointing out that staff “can’t keep hitting curbs with the grader all winter” because that would wreck the infrastructure. He repeated that it snows in Alberta and said people who don’t like it can go someplace warm, like Arizona.

Smith cut him off, saying “You’re done.”

“No, I’m not,” argued Olsen, saying Smith had given him the floor to speak. He did not object further when Smith took the floor to complete his report to council.

No other councillor challenged who should have the floor on a point of order.

Town staff had cleaned the gutter with the grader the morning before council discussed the issue.

LEARNING FROM NATURE: Wild Wheat responds to climate change

In Canada, the Prairies are a major wheat growing area — with the crop generating farm gate receipts of over $6.7 billion in 2018. With wheat being one of Canada’s most important crops, producers and industries are looking for ways to minimize climate change, as hotter temperatures and more severe droughts are expected to strain crop production.

To understand how plant populations respond to climate change, Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada researchers and collaborators are looking at modern wheat’s ancestor, wild emmer, to see how it has adapted to changing climates.

The project, led by researcher Dr. Yong-Bi Fedko, looked at 10 populations of wild emmer wheat’s ancestor, wild emmer, to see how it has adapted to changing climates.

Four varieties of cereal and oilseed crops for Alberta provide information on cereal and oilseed variety performance within Alberta and northeastern British Columbia, says Alex Fedko, crop research scientist for Agriculture and Forestry.

“Important agronomic characteristics and disease resistance information are provided for varieties of wheat, barley, oat, rye, triticale, flax and canola,” he adds.

Four important components of the annual feed supply for Alberta’s cattle producers comes in the form of silage, green feed and swath grazing,” he adds. “As evidenced in Silage varieties for Alberta, the selection of varieties that produce the highest forage yield and/or nutritional quality becomes increasingly important.”

Radomsky, John

It is with deep sorrow and loss, our family announces the passing of husband, father, grandfather, great-grandfather, and uncle. John Radomsky, fondly known as “Dido” on February 27, 2020, at the age of 91 years. John will forever be remembered and missed by his loving wife Olga of 67 years, daughter Laura Murphy, grandson Jonathan (Amber) Murphy, & great grandchildren, Mara and Mackenzie.

He will also be fondly remembered by his sister Olga Glanville, sister-in-law Mary Nelson, nieces and nephews, Max (Kathy) Radomsky, Lisa Glanville, Randy (Alice) Doeherty, Barry Doeherty, Kirk (Chantal) Heuser, Ma (Greg) McClung, Debora/Troy Cook, Stephen/Paige Bryagidy; and John’s extended family.

John was predeceased by his parents Peter and Anna Radomsky, his brother William Radomsky and son Jim Murphy. John was a family man first and foremost and was always there for them. He cherished all his friends and neighbours and always enjoyed his coffee times and many conversations with them.

Even after retiring from a career of farming, John always remained a farmer at heart. He loved watching cattle grazing, the crops maturing, the moose and deer passing through his yard and continued to worry about how the weather would affect the farmers. His green thumb and gardening skills were evident as he nurtured his many fruit trees.

We would like to thank everyone who visited John, sent cards, called and provided a shoulder to lean on. Thank you to the medical staff for their compassionate care of John at both the Mazankowski Alberta Heart Institute and the Smoky Lake Hospital.

Time will never erase your presence in our lives. We will always remember your smile, kindness, humour and special moments shared.

At John’s request, there will be no funeral service. If friends desire, in lieu of flowers, tribute donations can be made in his memory to: Mazankowski Alberta Heart Institute, c/o the University Hospital Foundation, 8440-112 St NW, Edmonton, AB T6G 2B7. Donations can also be made online: https://www.universityhospitalfoundation.ab.ca/tribute_Memorial.

“I farmed the land, I trimmed the wood, These are things I understood. I knew the brook, the hills, the sky. To hunt a bird, to wet a line, Gifts from God, so good and fine. Friend and kin, I loved them so; Although I’m gone, I’m sure they know. To hunt a bird, to wet a line, Gifts from God, so good and fine. These are things I understood.”
